<https://www.swva4hcenter.org/>

In 1957, a group of farsighted leaders incorporated the Southwest Virginia 4-H Center. Washington County, Virginia gave the original 50-acre site, and by 1960, the first camping season was underway. Since that time, over 25,000 4-H'ers have camped at the Center; enthusiastic band students have practiced new marching routines; and countless families, businesses and civic groups have enjoyed the elaborate 4-H Center facilities." (From the "From Silver to Gold: Celebrating 25 Years Camping" anniversary celebration event program.)

The Southwest Virginia 4-H Educational Center is a 501(c)(3) registered nonprofit providing unique cultural and education experiences for youth and adults throughout the region and beyond.

Located in Washington County, just outside of Abingdon, the 4-H Center has been serving the 13-county Southwest Virginia community at its historic 75-acre facility since 1960.
